

DRUG SLEUTHS FACE SERIOUS GRAFT CHARGES

Alleged to Have Seized Thousands of Dollars Worth of Drugs and Sold Them.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—Charges that John de Vries and Emile G. Coret, inspectors for the state board of pharmacy, sold thousands of dollars worth of drugs that they seized from illicit peddlers and took "protection" money from such peddlers, have been made to the district attorney by Samuel Morelen, an alleged drug trafficker, according to an article in the Call-Post here. The charges were denied by the secretary of the board, Louis Zeh, who said that Morelen, who is facing prosecution, is trying to get the inspectors into difficulties.

Vice President Marshall at San Francisco Comments on Political Outlook

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—That the Republican leaders are less well pleased with the nomination of Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio for the presidency than they were last Saturday was declared by Vice President Thomas R. Marshall on his arrival here to attend the Democratic national convention.

The vice president added that he was not a candidate for the presidency but on the contrary was about to retire from politics. He declared the Republicans were in error if they assumed the election of Senator Harding was a foregone conclusion and said that President Wilson did not want a third term, but could be nominated and elected for one if he did.

Democrats Not Idle.

Of Senator Harding's candidacy, the vice president said:

"The Republicans are not so well pleased now as they were on Saturday night. Personally I have regard for Senator Harding. I would do anything for him except vote for him."

"The Republicans are making the mistake of their lives in thinking of the November election as a foregone conclusion and of the Democrats as a disorganized, defeated party. They are going to find us very much alive in November."

Mr. Marshall decried lavish expenditures of money in connection with presidential campaigns. It was "disheartening," he said, adding that he regretted the "Republican" were not the only guilty ones.

Discuss Convention.

Of the Democratic convention and his own part as a delegate in it, the vice president said:

"I am here to promote peace and good will among the Democrats at this coming convention." He said so far as the convention was concerned "there is no Irish question" and of prohibition enforcement he declared "Nothing is so detrimental to the country as the passage of laws and the ignoring of those same laws."

Mr. Marshall's reference to his retirement was in answer to an interviewer's inquiry whether he was a candidate for the presidential nomination. It was "I am an old man, who has torn his hair for Byran, slaved for Parker and done his hardest for Wilson, and I am about ready to retire from politics."

NORRISTOWN OFFICERS FEAR VIOLENCE IF KIDNAPPER OF COUGHLIN BABY IS FOUND

NORRISTOWN, Pa., June 12.—Officials of Norristown are getting ready to give protection to the kidnapers of the Coughlin baby if he is found. They believe that Montgomery county people are so thoroughly aroused that it will be no easy task to prevent violence from being done.

It has been rumored that members of the state constabulary will be rushed here.

People are peeved at Coughlin's Stand.

The people of the county are getting into a mood by no means pleasant, as a result of the attitude taken by the Coughlin family. The Coughlins have done everything to preserve the utmost secrecy in the case and have consistently refused to talk over the case with newspaper men, most of the information having been given out through their attorney or Mrs. Coughlin's brother, W. H. Mott.

By sheer accident one of the most important clues in the case has been lost. On the morning after the kidnapping, footprints of a man and woman leading across a field from the Coughlin home were found.

Ladder Plays an Important Part.

After in the day, however, these footprints were entirely obliterated by a man who was harrowing the field.

Most important in the case is the ladder which was used to gain entry into the room in which the baby slept. This ladder was obtained from a house under construction a few yards away from the Coughlin home.

It seems certain that the kidnapers knew of the whereabouts of this ladder and the position of furniture in the Coughlin home, thereby adding to the belief that the kidnapers were entirely familiar with affairs of the Coughlins.

The Coughlin home is situated at the side of a road running from Norristown. On one side is the Plymouth Valley, and on the other, the Schuylkill Valley. The road is well traveled and it is hardly believable that an automobile could have stopped for any length of time on the road without being noticed. It is this fact that leads to the belief that the kidnapers kept their machine on the road in the Plymouth Valley below.

Detectives Working on Slim Clues.

Detectives working on the case are baffled. With the exception of the footprints, the fingerprints on the windows, and a report that a man and woman driving an automobile were seen some distance from the vicinity, they have not a single thing to work on.

England Not Bound to Come to Japan's Aid Against United States

TOKYO, June 16.—Japan inserted an article in the Anglo-Japanese alliance pact of 1911 to remove the risk of England becoming involved in any dispute between the United States and Japan, it was declared today by Viscount Kato, former foreign minister, in an interview urging renewal of the treaty.

Viscount Kato, who negotiated the treaty with Viscount Grey, said that both thought the United States should be specifically mentioned, but that the Tokyo government preferred not to use the name.

The article in question of the Anglo-Japanese alliance of 1911 is as follows: Article IV.—Should either of the high contracting parties conclude a treaty of general arbitration with a third power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall impose upon such contracting party an obligation to go to war with the power with whom such arbitration treaty is in force."

Recent dispatches from Tokyo reported that the Japanese cabinet decided to open negotiations with Great Britain for a renewal and revision of the alliance.

The Secret

One of the secrets of the inimitable flavor of M & G Potato Flakes lies in their paring.

The rich, soluble mineral salts, which lie close to the skin of a potato, are its biggest flavor elements. Ordinary knife paring—however thin—removes these salts, and with them much of the flavor.

So we scrape our potatoes by removing them rapidly in a great bowl lined with rough carborundum, hard and bright as a diamond. The mineral salts and all the rich flavor are left.

When asked regarding the Mexican reports of his expulsion under article thirty-three which empowers the president to deport foreigners he replied that he had been provided with a passport by the Mexican foreign affairs office and was free to go and come as he chose and that there was absolutely nothing to the report.

Notwithstanding his temporary imprisonment after the death of President Carranza he said he had been treated well. He declared he was a witness in the investigation of the president's death. Several members of the party are still being held, he said, pending further inquiry.

The former ambassador appears to be in good spirits, but avoids comment on the stirring events which followed close upon his retirement from the race for the Mexican presidency.
